myself and a little bundle, down to New Orleans. A steamer was coming down the river. We have, you know, no wharves along the western streams, and the custom was, if passengers were at any of the landings for them to go out in a boat, the steamer stopping and taking them on board. I was contemplating my new flat boat, and wondering whether I could make it stronger or improve it in any particular, when two men came down to the shore in carriages with trunks, and looking at the different boats singled out mine, and asked, 'who owns this?' I answered, somewhat modestly, 'I do', 'Will you,' said one of them, 'take us and our trunks out to the steamer'?' (Certainly,' said I. I was very glad to have the opportunity of earning something. I supposed that each would give me two or three bits. The trunks were put on my flat boat, the passengers seated themselves on 'the trunks, and I sculled them out to the steamboat. They got on board, and I lifted up their heavy trunks and put them on deck. The steamer was about to put on steam, when I called out that they had forgotten to pay me. Each of them took from his pocket a sliver half dollar, and threw it on the floor of my boat. I could scarcely believe my eyes as I placed up their he money. Gentlemen, you mey think it a very little thing, and in these days it seems to me like a ten arpents to the hand was considered a fair result, and more than three-fourths of the plantations failed to come to that standard. My laborers are all good people, behaving well, having good common sense; they are honest and true to their family. Besides the crop in common, they have raised for their private account small crops of corn and vegetables; they have poultry, etc., of their own. Not a single difficulty has occurred among them since they have agreed to work on my farm.

Thus is the whole labor problem solved. Deal justly, give the freedmen solved.
